Sunday-School Celebration at Calvary Church Last sight- An Interesting Programme Admirably interpreted.

the New Organ-Trial Tests Proveitto be a Very Kisg of Instruments Prof. Perring Indorses it.

Last evening, the eve of the day of the Calvary church had their usual celebran, and the occasion was made even ore attractive than usual, as the new gan was used for the first time. The church was handsomely lighted up for the occasion. The star of fire blazed in ast window and the altar was at lazwith burning candles disposed as closely possible, while every window was il-minated, and the front of the organcallery poured down refulgence upon the the church, where the gorgeous ody of handeliers each streamed with lustrous brightness. As the time for the proceedings approached, the people—including a very large number of ladies—entered very seat of every pew had its occupant, and the nisles had each their crowd of gentlemen, for whom no seats ccassion too delightful for them to leave. At length a loud, clear roll of chords from the organ echoed from the walls and roof, and a hundred voices burst out with that great chorus from the Creation, "The Heavens are Telling." The pealing organ, rolling its vast base in gorgeous chords, and blending with he deficious narmony of some of the best voices lu the city, reudered the shorus in a style rarely equalled. It was impressive, beautiful and finished. Mr. Perring's handling of the organ was for, although well deserved; to name inly befair, but while all did well some were so excellent in voice, style, gesture, and correct emphasis that we have to put restraint upon ourselves to av id namto burst out with spontaneous applause, although in so doing they violated the rule governing the occasion. Little tolks as big as Liliputians stood before the vast sudience, and with that aplomb and ease that is one of the charms of the dear little ones that hold our heart-strings in their little flagers, and sung their little songs or recited their little pieces with a correctness that gained admiration, and a sweetness and simplicity that "touched near to the
